Situated in the Sea of Hourglass, the Varuta Islands consist of six mountainous islands with a subtropical and tropical climate. Only the largest island has rivers originating from its central mountain ranges.

History

Most of the islands remain uninhabited, hosting only local fauna and monsters. However, the main island was colonized during the 7th century by the Ofieri, as well as some Zangvebarian pirates and Hann mercenaries prior to the occupation of Barsa due to the islands' strategic position. This colonization resulted in the establishment of several coastal cities and the creation of a new ethnicity, the varutians as a product of the fusion of the three groups. The other islands lacked the necessary resources for human settlement. For a long time, before the unification of Ofir under one state, the islands were known as the Korsan Adaları (The Pirate Islands) by the Ofieri. Later on, they were known as the Yeşil Mücevher (The Green Jewel) due to their lush vegetation and vibrant coral reefs. The Yeşil Mücevher became a popular destination for Ofieri nobility seeking a luxurious escape. Under Nibras's father's rule, the islands were renamed Varuta in honor of the Ofieri gods of the seas.

Administration

Due to its geographical position, the islands are considered an eyalet, the equivalent to a province in places such as the Nilgaardian Empire. Administered by a pasha directly appointed by the central government. The pasha is responsible for maintaining order, collecting taxes, and overseeing trade within the Varuta Islands.
